

Communication device

Abstract

A communication device includes a microphone, a speaker, a display, an antenna, and an input device. The communication device implements the voice recognition tag mode and the shortcut icon displaying mode. A phone number is dialed at the time an audio data relating to the phone number is input via the microphone when the voice recognition tag mode is implemented, and a shortcut icon representing a specific software program is displayed on the display when the shortcut icon displaying mode is implemented.